The VVorlds VVonder.

Giving an Account of Two Old Men,

Lately known and seen in the City of Tholouze in France, who declare themselves to be above a Thousand Years old a peice, and Preach Repentance to the World; telling what shall happen for these Nine Years following, and when the World shall end.

Tune of, My Bleeding Heart.

STrange Newes to England lately came,
the like I think was never known;
And if it proves a certain truth,
'twill terror strike to hearts of Stone.

A City great there is in France,
and Tholouze is it call'd by name;
Two Prophets there was lately found,
invisibly they thither came.

No Man nor Child could ever tell
which way these Prophets they came in,
They say that they were sent from God,
to reprehend the World for Sin.

A Thousand years of Age, and more,
each of them do declare to be;
Methuselah ne'r liv'd so long,
as by the Scriptures you may see.

Gods Holy Spirit they declare
into their Breasts inspired is;
In this our Age a thing so rare, (this.
I think there's none more strange then

Strange kinds of habit they do wear,
the like ne'r seen by mortal Eye;
And their deportment is as strange,
although they Preach continually.

The VVorlds VVonder.

Giving an Account of Two Old Men,

Lately known and seen in the City of Tholouze in France, who declare themselves to be above a Thousand Years old a peice, and Preach Repentance to the World; telling what shall happen for these Nine Years following, and when the World shall end.

Tune of, My Bleeding Heart.

STrange Newes to England lately came,
the like I think was never known;
And if it proves a certain truth,
'twill terror strike to hearts of Stone.

A City great there is in France,
and Tholouze is it call'd by name;
Two Prophets there was lately found,
invisibly they thither came.

No Man nor Child could ever tell
which way these Prophets they came in,
They say that they were sent from God,
to reprehend the World for Sin.

A Thousand years of Age, and more,
each of them do declare to be;
Methuselah ne'r liv'd so long,
as by the Scriptures you may see.

Gods Holy Spirit they declare
into their Breasts inspired is;
In this our Age a thing so rare, (this.
I think there's none more strange then

Strange kinds of habit they do wear,
the like ne'r seen by mortal Eye;
And their deportment is as strange,
although they Preach continually.

Good Admonition they do give,
allwaies all Men to Repent;
They say this is the only cause,
that they into the World were sent.

Gods Wrath against the Romans they do now declare is kindled hot;
And if with speed they dont Repent,
their Crimes shall never be forgot.

The City of Tholouze, they say,
to Sodom may compared be,
And in three Months shall be consum'd
by Flames of Fire undoubtedly.

Except they do their lives amend,
and quite forsake Iniquity;
Which do the People much amaze,
for this is their continual cry.

The Magistrates offended were,
at the strange Doctrine they did Preach:
But they reply'd they came from God,
the sinful People for to teach.

At length there was an Order made,
that they should close confined be;
With Jesuits they did discourse
in several Tongues, most perfectly.

Their Diet also was most strange,
on Delicates they never fed;
Their Drink was only Water clear,
their greatest Banquet was dry Bread.

And then the Magistrates did ask (came?
these Prophets strange, from whence they
Their answer was, from Gallilee,
Galladium was their Cities name.

The Jesuites did then perswade
the Magistrates, that they should go To Rome to see his Holiness,
that he the truth of all might know.

At this they nothing daunted were,
for they declar'd they knew their doom;
And seemed to be mighty free
for to go see the Pope at Rome.

But being Ferret'd then with Chains,
at which they seem'd to make a scoff;
They much amaz'd the People all,
for with great ease they shook them off.

They Prophesie in Eighty-One,
there shall be Troubles over all:
In Eighty-Two they do declare,
the Pope of Rome shall have a Fall.

In Eighty-Three throughout the World,
they do declare, that Preach they shall:
In Eighty-Four, that Jesus Christ
shall without doubt be known to all.

In Eighty-Five there shall arise,
one that shall mighty be with Men:
In Eighty-Six an Earthquake shall much terrifie the World agen.

In Eighty-Seven, Africa
shall quite consumed be by Fire;
In Eighty-Eight, the World amaz'd,
in Eighty-Nine, the World expire.

FINIS.

Printed for F. Coles, T. Vere, J. Wright, J. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passinger.